PRENTICE ON THE APOSTLE PAUL —It is always [illegible] to read Prentice's Journal but he is never more entertaining than when he talks about [illegible] The following from the Louisville Journal of the 24 December, explains itself

It is a well known fact that an impression prevails to a considerable extent among the slave population of Kentucky that they will be free on the first of January under the proclamation of the President of the United States. If this delusion is not speedily corrected it will be likely to lead to disastrous results to the negroes and we know of no better means for correcting the delusion than through the pulpits of African churches. We therefore for the sake of the welfare of the negroes suggest to their preachers throughout the State to earnestly, zealously, and energetically set themselves to correct the evil at once. Kentucky is not in any way included in the President's proclamation. That proclamation expressly refers to States or portions of States that are engaged in armed rebellion, and it distinctly states that any State or any portion even of a rebellious State that shall be represented in the National Congress on the first day of January, will be relieved from the operation of the proclamation. Even New Orleans rebellious as it has been, if it elects a member of Congress under General Butler's proclamation, will not be touched by the President's proclamation. The President's proclamation will be applicable to Eastern Virginia which will have no representative in Congress on the 1st of January, but it will have no application at all to Northwestern Virginia which will have its complement of members of Congress. We, therefore, hope that the Rev Mr Adams, the Rev Mr [illegible] and all other preachers in the State, who have the pastoral care of African churches, will at once show by their acts that their duty is recognized and performed. If the Apostle Paul could tell those members of the Corinthian church who were "called into Christianity" while they were slaves, not to accept freedom even if it were offered to them, those who are subalterns of Paul may feel secure in walking in his path

SECRETARY WELLES —The New York sensation press has had a great deal to say against Secretary Welles, which was as malicious as it is false. It would be well indeed if the other departments of government could show so brilliant a record as the Navy Department. On this subject the New York Commercial Advertiser very justly remarks

We cannot go over in detail the splendid achievements of our navy during the past year. The Secretary's report is of unusual length, though devoting but a short space to each of the important services which that arm has rendered. Called into existence almost with the suddenness of thought, armed and fitted out as it were with the wand of a magician, it has gone forth on its mission of restoring union and peace, coiling itself around three thousand miles of coast, which it has hugged with the grip of a boa constrictor. The number of vessels captured by the blockading squadron during the past year was three hundred and ninety, making a total of one hundred and [illegible] three seized since the establishment of the blockade. Besides it has taken to breaking the bones of its victim, in the shape of capturing his forts and cities, until but a few of them retain their original [illegible]. Never, we are free to say, has a year gone by with so brilliant a record. Never [illegible] navy no matter how built and equipped, [illegible] so many, so various and so [illegible] services as our own since November [illegible] The names of the victories gained [illegible] frequent mention, and the [illegible] of history, an encyclopedia

THE MEMORY OF KENDALL —The Overland Press closes a notice of the life of B F Kendall and his character in the following terms

As a public officer he gave his whole soul to his duties, and he toiled in the affairs of the public the same as that he gave to his own. But it is not as the public man the lawyer or the scholar that the memory of the deceased will live the longest in the hearts of those that mourn him as dead, they will prize him the most as that kind and generous friend who veiled his better nature under an apparent rudeness and severity of bearing, but from whose deep feelings poured out at times acts of generosity that told of the soul within. [illegible] the man who cherished all who had befriended him, who loved the face of a friend and while [illegible] the last hour of his life honored and treasured and repaid the debt he owed to the father that raised and the mother that bore him. These will cherish his memory, and when the feelings engendered by personal animosities and political disputes have passed away, when the grave has covered alike the man and his failings all will recognize that there was here among us one who has left his "footsteps on the sands of time,"

TUESDAY MORNING JAN 20 1863

The Proclamation on this Coast

The political changes on the Pacific coast in the last six years are significant of the growth of the anti slavery sentiment Six years ago the remark of Mr Seward that, "The pro-slavery influence is as firmly established by the Bay of San Francisco as it is on Chesapeake Bay" was literally true No person, who did not assent to the abominable doctrines promulgated by the Southern Democratic politicians, was allowed to participate in the management of public affairs The first article in the Democratic creed of California was to worship certain politicians, most of whom are now prominent rebels The vassalage of public men of Northern birth was shameful in the last degree to Northern manhood. So intent were the Democrats of Northern birth to be Southern men in some way or another, that they actually considered it an honor to be born in the Southern part of some Northern State Strange as the ridiculous statement may appear, it is absolutely true If, by any good fortune, an aspirant for political honors had over passed any portion of his life in the slave States, he was sure to make it supplementary to the acknowledgment that he had been born in the North Thus "I am a Northerner by birth, but have lived in the South" I am a Northern man with Southern principles." But with all this contemptible servility to the overseer politicians, there was at the base of all an ardent devotion to the Union The accumulated political wrongs of ten years at last became too burdensome to bear The arrogance of the overseers at last became intolerable, and the people dashed them from all places of power and trust. The man who says that the Federal patronage was the cause of the defeat of the Democrats, or is now the cause of the success of the Unionists, knows but little of the spirit which animates the people of California California was a Democratic State until Democracy meant treason, and then she washed her hands of it But for the abundant proof that a large proportion of the Democratic office-holders were traitors in disguise, California would still be Democratic. The people no longer trust them

In this State, the public will recognize as a fact that, what is stated of California applies to Oregon as well, only the Federal pets of Gen. Lane were in most cases infinitely more obnoxious than those of Gwin in California

California, having advanced to a position where she has repeatedly crushed Democracy is to-day as earnestly endeavoring to support the President in his proclamation of freedom as any other portion of the Union, and with scarcely less unanimity The press of the State overflows with proofs of this assertion The notes of dissent to the Government policy are not as numerous, loud or influential, as are sounded by the Democratic press of New England.

We do not accept this fact as a proof that all agree in the necessity or propriety of the proclamation, but that our fate is linked to the Union cause, and we cannot afford to disagree among ourselves We can effect nothing by dissent, except to give the secessionists aid and comfort and weaken our influence for good. We are in the current and cannot but float with it. We are content to do so, because we believe that the rights of any rebel are secondary to the preservation of the Union, and not only their rights, but their very lives They have placed themselves in the bitterest antagonism to the Union and must endure such pains and penalties as are necessary to ensure the safety of the Union.

DESPERATE AFFRAY.—On the evening of the first of January, inst., there was a public ball at Florence, Salmon river mines At this party, a woman of improper character intruded herself and was ejected by J. D Williams, widely and favorably known as "Jakey" Williams, and O Robbins This woman was under the protection of Henry Tolbert, sometimes called "Cherokee Bob," who had an intimate named William Willoughby These two men determined to revenge the slight put on the woman, and spent the 2d day of January in hunting for a fight with Williams and Robbins During the day a collision took place between Robbins and Tolbert, which came near having a bloody termination It was only prevented by the interference of Mr Keenan, the Deputy Sheriff of Idaho At night the parties met in front of the Bank Exchange Saloon, and Tolbert and Willoughby opened fire on Williams and Robbins—Willoughby was slain by fourteen pistol-shots, and died on the spot Tolbert received five shots in his body and died on the 5th inst Thus closed the earthly career of one of the most murderously desperate men that has ever figured on the coast—Henry Tolbert. The friends of Mr Williams and Mr Robbins will hear with pleasure that they were acquitted of all blame in the matter

The porcine manners of Secretary Stanton, continue to excite the wrath of loyal citizens who have business to transact at the War Office.

Miscellaneous Paragraphs

A nephew of Jeff Davis, Major Balfour was killed at the battle of Corinth He was of one of the first families of Mississippi

It is stated that Muzio [illegible] the head with his umbrella in the green room of the New York Academy while disputing about that famous half tone which the leader surreptitiously raised in his orchestra

Mrs Sophia Stewart, the last of the [illegible] royal family of Scotland, has [illegible] 91st year She was descended from Walter first baron of Kincardine, who was son of the Earl of Buchan and Lord of B[illegible] [illegible] of Robert II of Scotland

It is cheerfully stated that the New York soldiers in camp received a plentiful supply of Christian tracts to enable them to pass Thanksgiving happily Soul before belly is the colporteur's maxim as he flourishes a turkey drum stick

The Earl of Elgin relinquished a fat berth when he left India His predecessor went there a pauper peer and returned to England with $1,250,000 The little Duke of Argyle will succeed Elgin He is a poor devil with but half a million of income and it is an act of charity to give him something

The Louisville Journal says We want the true emancipation policy proclaimed We want Burnside and Foster and Rosecrans and Grant and McClernand with their powerful armies to cut the very heart of this rebellion and emancipate the hundreds of thousands of loyal men who are held in political servitude by the most galling despotism the world ever knew

The Democratic organization my boy says Orpheus C Kerr in its zeal to benefit its distracted country, is occasionally like that eminent fire company in the Sixth Ward which nobly usurped with its hose the terrible business of putting out a large conflagration, and never remembered, until its beautiful machine was all in position that another company of fellow firemen had exclusive possession of all the water works

NEW STYLE OF ROBBERY.—We have repeatedly called public attention to the "suppression dodge," which is practiced by certain of the secesh school of newspapers It appears that the public need continual warning on this point The machinery of the artifice is a great deal the same as in the bogus robbery dodge, but in this case, it amounts to actual robbery For instance start a newspaper, with the understanding that it is to be a Union Democratic paper or a neutral run it awhile, get all the advance subscriptions that you can, pocket them and get your paper suppressed After this, abuse the tyrant Lincoln and his foul minions, ask your subscribers to take the circumstances into consideration, and say no more about it Go on and play this over three or four times and you will make some money In this way, we have had the Herald, Register and Review published at Eugene City; the Democrat, Inquirer, and now the State Democrat, at Albany the Gazette and now the Intelligencer, at Jacksonville, besides some other instances of this kind which will receive notice in another shape hereafter All these have taken just such a course as would be sure to prevent the proprietors from furnishing their papers to their subscribers Malone, of the Union, is alone in continuing to subscribers as agreed upon We denounce the practice as no better than stealing, in the matter of getting money dishonestly, and infinitely worse than stealing in the particular of manliness and openness It is calculated to dishonor the printer's craft and the respectable profession of a journalist There has been enough money taken from the pockets of the people to support this beggarly style of newspapers, which are too poor to buy news, too lazy to gather locals, and almost too much so to steal telegrams with the scissors

THE CANOE AND SADDLE.—Theodore Winthrop has just published a book with the title which forms the caption of this article It is principally devoted to descriptions of scenes and adventures in Oregon and Washington Territory The Chinook Jargon, once the polite language of Oregon, is thus described by him:

A grotesque jargon called Chinook, is the lingua-franca of the whites and Indians of the Northwest. Once the Chinooks were the most numerous tribe along the Columbia, and the first, from their position at its mouth, to meet and talk with strangers. Now it is all over with them; their bones are dust, small pox and spirits have eliminated the race But there grew up between them and the traders a lingo, an incoherent conglutination of words—as much like a settled, logical language as a legion of centrifugal, marauding Bashi Bazouks, every man a Jack of all trades, a beggar and blackguard, is like an accurate, unanimous, disciplined battalion. It is a jargon of English, French, Spanish, Chinook, Killapoogn, Haida and other tongues, civilized and savage. It is an attempt on a small scale to nullify Babel by combining a confusion of tongues into a confounding of tongues—a witches' caldron in which the vocable that bobs up may be some old familiar Saxon verb, having suffered Procrustean docking or elongation, and now doing substantive duty, or some strange monster, evidently nurtured within the range of tomahawks and calumets

The effect of the sublime scenery of our mountain ranges Mr Winthrop thinks will be to produce a grand development of our race He puts his idea in this shape

Our race has never yet come into contact with great mountains as companions of daily life, nor felt that daily development of the finer and more comprehensive senses which these signal facts of nature compel That is an influence of the future The Oregon people, in a climate where being is bliss—where every breath is a draught of vivid life—these Oregon people, carrying a new and grander New England of the West, a fuller growth of the American Idea, under whose teaching the man of lowest ambitions must still have some little indestructible respect for himself, and the brute of most tyrannical aspirations some little respect for others carrying there a religion two centuries farther on than the crude and cruel Hebraism of the Puritans carrying the civilization of history where it will not suffer by the example of Europe—with such material that Western society, when it crystalizes, will elaborate new systems of thought and life It is unphilosophical to suppose that a strong race developing under the best, largest and calmest conditions of nature, will not achieve a destiny

New York January 11th.—The steamer Creole from New Orleans, Jan 3d has arrived The purser of the Creole reports that the gunboat Clifton arrived from the South west Pass on the evening of the 3d with news that the rebels had made an assault on the Federals at Galveston, (Texas) on the morning of the 1st Our gunboats were attacked by several steamers Our gunboats were protected by double rows of cotton bales The Harriet Lane was captured after fighting, including the Captain, and crew—130 in all—were killed by musketry from rebel steamers The gunboats Clifton and Owasco were engaged but escaped the former losing two men and having but one wounded Two barges loaded with coal fell into the enemy's hands The flagship Westfield [illegible] Commodore Renshaw was not engaged she being in a northern channel Her crew were transferred to a transport, and Renshaw fearing she would fall into the hands of the enemy blew her up By some mismanagement or accident the explosion occurred before the boat containing Renshaw and his boat's crew got away and they were blown up with the ship The remainder of the crew were saved Our land force, under Colonel Burrill numbered not exceed three hundred The troops which had been sent there to occupy Galveston did not arrive, and the place was evacuated They did not disembark All the fleet is now on the way back to New Orleans The rebels are estimated at about 5 000 Our loss is estimated at [illegible] to [illegible] killed and 200 taken prisoners Rebels suffered considerably, as our guns fired grape and canister into their midst

ST LOUIS Jan 9—It is stated that a rebel force under Gen Marmaduke, in the rear of Blunt and Heron, attacked Springfield, Missouri, on the 8th There has been some fighting since At noon the enemy in large force took our guns but were repulsed at dark. Militia reinforcements are coming in

DETROIT Michigan, Jan 9th—The Michigan Legislature met yesterday and re elected Chandler United States Senator for six years.

Latest from Vicksburg.

Gen McClernand has assumed command of the Union forces at Vicksburg Rebel advices the latest, are to the 2d of January from that point The Union forces have gone down the Yazoo, and the rebels think that they will try to storm their works at Snyder's Bluffs. The news from that quarter indicates a likelihood of active operations

Scarcity of Legal Tender Notes.

The following, which we clip from an exchange, accounts for the scarcity of legal tender notes in the Atlantic cities, which was reported to have occurred a short time since:

The above fact, which to some will hardly be credible, was brought out by the late negotiation of $15,000,000 7 30 Treasury or war loan notes in the Atlantic cities.— It will be remembered that Secretary Chase advertised for bids for this loan to be sent to the Treasury Department within a period of five days, accompanied by a deposit of ten per cent of the amount bid for, the whole to be paid in legal tender notes.— Almost immediately after issuing this advertisement the Secretary applied to the banks and leading capitalists for a temporary loan of $12,000,000 to be made up at once and to be reimbursed out of the proceeds of the 7 30s advertised for sale.— The natural presumption was, that the exigencies of Government would not admit of delay of even five or six days

By some parties the Secretary was much censured for the course pursued by him in this matter, as savoring of sharp practice, or, at least, of injudicious and unreasonable trifling with important interests It being evident from the popularity of the 7 30s that the amount bid for would be largely in excess of the amount offered, and that every bidder would seek to provide himself with a sufficient sum of the required currency to cover his bid, or at least to cover the deposit of ten per cent, thus creating a sudden and very active demand for legal tenders, it was imagined by these parties, that the design of the Secretary, in applying for the temporary loan of $12,000,000, was to corner the market, and show the superiority of his own fiscal policy of legal tender issues, over the plan of negotiating loans proposed by leading financiers It was even hinted that friends of his might have received information in advance in regard to this sudden and unexpected movement, enabling them to reap substantial profits from it on the Stock Exchange.— The call for $12,000,000 pending a negotiation which was to terminate in five days, was regarded as unnecessary, and the reason assigned for it—army payments—as unsatisfactory and improbable, in view of the deliberation with which Government usually acts in such cases, five days delay in the cancelling of claims upon it being an event of no unusual occurrence, unless, indeed, on the score of unusual brevity

The consequence of the negotiation, or perhaps we should say, of the hasty manner in which it was pressed upon the market, were, an immediate contraction of loans, and an unusual stringency of money, causing the sacrifice of collaterals, and in short, quite a panic in stocks—the decline, according to the N Y World, being equivalent to $75,000,000, and as every applicant is presumed to have provided or endeavored to provide against the contingency of an acceptance of his offer, it will be readily seen that the disturbance in the money market was not without adequate cause, indeed, the wonder is that it was no greater, especially in view of the fact alluded to in the commencement of these remarks, namely an absolute deficiency of legal tender notes of the required denominations in the Atlantic cities beyond the amount necessary for the bank reserves Had the Secretary given ten days time for the bidding the whole amount required could have been taken from his own vaults upon certificates of deposite bearing 4 per cent interest, and the opportunity to convert 4 per cent stock into 7 30 is one of those occasions not usually neglected in Wall street But the time was limited to five days, and the loan of $12,000,000 was required at once It was found extremely difficult, under these circumstances, to procure legal tenders for this temporary loan, and had it really been the object of the Secretary to corner the market, it would seem that he could scarcely have done it more effectually

The New York Herald, speaking of the advocates of a further issue of an irredeemable paper currency, says —"We have now 800,000 soldiers in the field, whom we have hired at the wages of $13 a month If Congress, by injudicious financial manœuvres, and by further issues of irredeemable paper, should make those $13 only equal in "purchasing power" to $6 or $7, it will be a fraud on the army which the soldiers will not be slow to discover. If the gallant men who are fighting our battles in Virginia, Tennessee, South Carolina and the Gulf, discover that by the mismanagement of Congress the wages which they were promised only in fact amount to half as much as they appeared at the time of their enlistment, the result will be an amount of dissatisfaction, which may assume alarming proportions When these soldiers learn that, owing to the legislation of Congress, their $13 a month only purchases as much food and clothing as $7 would have done when they enlisted they will have valid grounds of complaint which some ambitious commander may turn to his own account It will not answer for Congress to trifle with 800,000 armed men History is full of examples of such attempts, but we shall vainly search its record for an instance in which the attempt was successful, though there are many in which such legislative blunders as are now mooted have led to the establishment of military despotisms"

San Francisco Fruit Market.

San Francisco Dec 25th 1862

Editor Oregon Farmer —The steamer Pacific arrived the 23d inst, bringing about 3200 boxes of apples The market was almost entirely bare of apples previous to this arrival, which with the demand for the holidays caused an advance over the sales of the previous steamer Sales ranged from 4½ to 8c Only three or four invoices went above 6½c and those were of the very best quality and condition in every respect

Respectfully yours,
Knapp, Burrell & Co

General Bayard.—The following is a short sketch of the life of the brilliant cavalry officer Gen Bayard, who was killed at Fredericksburg [illegible] in the gallant but [illegible] attack on the enemy's lines behind the [illegible]

Brigadier General George D Bayard, the gallant cavalry officer of [illegible] has been killed. He was a native of New York and was appointed a cadet in the West Point Military Academy in 1852 He graduated in the [illegible] of June 1856 and on the 1st of July, 1856 was appointed a Second Lieutenant of the First United States Cavalry On the 20th of August 1861 he was promoted to a Captaincy [illegible] the Fourth United States Cavalry He was [illegible] the command of the First Pennsylvania Cavalry and in General Orders No [illegible] Washington, [illegible] he is announced as a Brigadier General of Volunteers commanding cavalry He has made several brilliant cavalry dashes both before and since his appointment as General and being but a young man gave promise of great military ability in the future.— His loss will be much regretted by his [illegible] He is said to have been betrothed to a lovely young lady General Bayard was wounded in the face by a poisoned arrow by Indians on the frontiers from the effects of which he had never recovered, and which his physicians predicted would ultimately cause his death He often expressed a determination never to die from that cause if he could die in the battles of his country He has met the fate and secured the fame he coveted

Portland Oregon January 10th 1863

Proclamation by the Governor

Executive Office Portland Oregon, January 6 1863

By the President of the United States through Brigadier General George Wright commanding the Department of the Pacific and Brigadier General Benjamin Alvord commanding the District of Oregon, I have been requested to raise six additional companies required to complete the 1st Regiment of Cavalry Oregon V lunteers They will be needed the coming Spring on the frontiers of this State and Washington Territory and for an expedition against the Snake Indians who have so long been mercilessly engaged in robbing emigrants and murdering our fellow-citizens I cannot doubt that the citizens of Oregon, who have always promptly responded to any demand for their military services will in like manner respond to this call thereby showing their loyalty to the Government, and aiding in chastising marauding bands of Indians which infest our frontiers

The enlisted men when mounted will be supplied with horses by the United States it being understood that they will be mounted or not, as shall be deemed advisable by the Government

Propositions to raise a whole company, which will furnish their own horses and horse equipments, may be entertained The men are in such cases entitled to forty cents a day for the use and risk of their horses and horse equipments

Each company will consist of one hundred enlisted men, and when mustered into the service of the United States to serve for three years, unless sooner discharged

Recruiting offices will be immediately opened at Portland, Dalles City and perhaps at other places By the Governor,

ADDISON C GIBBS

PRENTICE ON THE APOSTLE PAUL.—It is always [illegible] Prentice's Journal, but it is [illegible] more entertaining than when he talks [illegible] The following from the Louisville Journal of the 2d December explains itself

It is a well known fact that an impression prevails to a considerable extent among the slave population in Kentucky that they will be free in the first of January under the proclamation of the President of the United States. If this delusion is not speedily corrected it will be likely to lead to disastrous results to the negroes and we know of no better means for correcting the delusion than through the pulpits of African churches. We therefore for the sake of the welfare of the negroes suggest to their preachers throughout the State to earnestly, zealously, and energetically set themselves to correct the evil at once. Kentucky is not in any way included in the President's proclamation. That proclamation expressly refers to States or portions of States that are engaged in armed rebellion, and it distinctly states that any State or any portion even of a rebellious State, that shall be represented in the National Congress on the first day of January will be relieved from the operation of the proclamation. Even New Orleans rebellious as it has been, if it elects a member of Congress under General Butler's proclamation will not be touched by the President's proclamation. The President's proclamation will be applicable to Eastern Virginia, which will have no representative in Congress on the 1st of January, but it will have no application at all to Northwestern Virginia which will have its complement of members of Congress. We, therefore, hope that the Rev Mr Adams, the Rev Mr. Smethon, and all other preachers in the State, who have the pastoral care of African churches, will at once show by their acts that their duty is recognized and performed. If the Apostle Paul could tell those members of the Corinthian church, who were "called into Christianity" while they were slaves, not to accept freedom even if it were offered to them, those who are subalterns of Paul may feel secure in walking in his path

SECRETARY WELLES.—The New York sensation press has had a great deal to say against Secretary Welles, which was as malicious as it is false. It would be well indeed if the other departments of government could show so brilliant a record as the Navy Department. On this subject the New York Commercial Advertiser very justly remarks

We cannot go over in detail the splendid achievements of our navy during the past year. The Secretary's report is of unusual length though devoting but a short space to each of the important services which that arm has rendered. Called into existence almost with the suddenness of thought, armed and fitted out as if with the wand of a magician, it has gone forth on its mission of restoring union and peace, coiling itself around three thousand miles of coast, which it has hugged with the grip of a boa constrictor. The number of vessels captured by the blockading squadron during the past year was three hundred and ninety, making a total of five hundred and thirty three seized since the establishment of the blockade. Besides it has taken [illegible] the bones of its victim, in the shape of capturing his forts and cities, until [illegible] a few of them retain their original [illegible]. Never, we are free to say has a year gone by with so brilliant a record. Never [illegible] navy no matter how built and equipped [illegible] so many, so various and so [illegible] services as our own since November, 1861. The names of the victories gained are too [illegible] for frequent mention, and the [illegible] of history, an encyclopædia

THE MEMORY OF KENDALL.—The Overland Press closes an account of the life of B F Kendall and his character in the following terms

As a public officer he gave his whole soul to his duties and bestowed [illegible] the affairs of the public the same care that he gave to his own. But it is not as the public man, the lawyer or the scholar that the memory of the deceased will live the longest in the hearts of those that mourn him as dead, they will prize him the most as that kind and generous friend who veiled his better nature under an apparent rudeness and severity of bearing, but from whose deep feelings [illegible] out at times acts of generosity that told of the soul within [illegible] who cherished all who had befriended him, who loved the face of a friend, and who to the last hour of his life honored and treasured and repaid the debt he owed to the father that raised and the mother that bore him. [illegible] will cherish his memory, and when the feelings engendered by personal animosities and political disputes have passed away, when the grave has covered alike the man and his failings all will recognize that there was here among us one who has left his "footsteps on the sands of time"

No flag but the Old Flag—the Red, White and Blue,
With the stars of a Union unbroken and true:
Arise and defend it! ye sons of the brave,

TUESDAY MORNING, JAN. 20, 1863.

The Proclamation on this Coast.

The political changes on the Pacific coast in the last six years are significant of the growth of the anti-slavery sentiment. Six years ago the remark of Mr. Seward that, "The pro-slavery influence is as firmly established by the Bay of San Francisco as it is on Chesapeake Bay," was literally true. No person, who did not assent to the abominable doctrines promulgated by the Southern Democratic politicians, was allowed to participate in the management of public affairs. The first article in the Democratic creed of California was to worship certain politicians, most of whom are now prominent rebels. The vassalage of public men of Northern birth was shameful in the last degree to Northern manhood. So intent were the Democrats of Northern birth to be Southern men in some way or another, that they actually considered it an honor to be born in the Southern part of some Northern State. Strange as the ridiculous statement may appear, it is absolutely true. If, by any good fortune, an aspirant for political honors had ever passed any portion of his life in the slave States, he was sure to make it supplementary to the acknowledgment that he had been born in the North. Thus: "I am a Northerner by birth, but have lived in the South. I am a Northern man with Southern principles." But with all this contemptible servility to the overseer politicians, there was at the base of all an ardent devotion to the Union. The accumulated political wrongs of ten years at last became too burdensome to bear. The arrogance of the overseers at last became intolerable, and the people dashed them from all places of power and trust. The man who says that the Federal patronage was the cause of the defeat of the Democrats, or is now the cause of the success of the Unionists, knows but little of the spirit which animates the people of California. California was a Democratic State until Democracy meant treason, and then she washed her hands of it. But for the abundant proof that a large proportion of the Democratic office-holders were traitors in disguise, California would still be Democratic. The people no longer trust them.

In this State, the public will recognize as a fact that, what is stated of California applies to Oregon as well; only the Federal pets of Gen. Lane were in most cases infinitely more obnoxious than those of Gwin in California.

California, having advanced to a position where she has repeatedly crushed Democracy, is to-day as earnestly endeavoring to support the President in his proclamation of freedom as any other portion of the Union, and with scarcely less unanimity. The press of the State overflows with proofs of this assertion. The notes of dissent to the Government policy are not as numerous, loud or influential, as are sounded by the Democratic press of New England.

We do not accept this fact as a proof that all agree in the necessity or propriety of the proclamation, but that our fate is linked to the Union cause, and we cannot afford to disagree among ourselves. We can effect nothing by dissent, except to give the secessionists aid and comfort and weaken our influence for good. We are in the current and cannot but float with it. We are content to do so, because we believe that the rights of any rebel are secondary to the preservation of the Union; and not only their rights, but their very lives. They have placed themselves in the bitterest antagonism to the Union and must endure such pains and penalties as are necessary to ensure the safety of the Union.

DESPERATE AFFRAY.—On the evening of the first of January, inst., there was a public ball at Florence, Salmon river mines. At this party, a woman of improper character intruded herself and was ejected by J. D. Williams, widely and favorably known as "Jakey" Williams, and O. Robbins. This woman was under the protection of Henry Tolbert, sometimes called "Cherokee Bob," who had an intimate named William Willoughby. These two men determined to revenge the slight put on the woman, and spent the 2d day of January in hunting for a fight with Williams and Robbins. During the day a collision took place between Robbins and Tolbert, which came near having a bloody termination. It was only prevented by the interference of Mr. Keenan, the Deputy Sheriff of Idaho. At night the parties met in front of the Bank Exchange Saloon, and Tolbert and Willoughby opened fire on Williams and Robbins.—Willoughby was slain by fourteen pistol-shots, and died on the spot. Tolbert received five shots in his body, and died on the 5th inst. Thus closed the earthly career of one of the most murderously desperate men that has ever figured on the coast—Henry Tolbert. The friends of Mr. Williams and Mr. Robbins will hear with pleasure that they were acquitted of all blame in the matter.

The porcine manners of Secretary Stanton continue to excite the wrath of loyal citizens who have business to transact at the War Office.

Miscellaneous Paragraphs.

A nephew of Jeff. Davis, Major Balfour, was killed at the battle of Corinth. He was of one of the first families of Mississippi.

It is stated that Muzio banged Brignoli over the head with his umbrella in the green room of the New York Academy while disputing about that famous half tone which the leader surreptitiously raised in his orchestra.

Mrs. Sophia Stewart, the last of the ancient royal family of Scotland, has just died in her 91st year. She was descended from Walter, first baron of Kincardine, who was son of the Earl of Buchan, and Lord of Badenoch, son of Robert II., of Scotland.

It is cheerfully stated that the New York soldiers in camp received a plentiful supply of Christian tracts to enable them to pass Thanksgiving happily. Soul before belly is the colporteur's maxim as he flourishes a turkey drum-stick.

The Earl of Elgin relinquished a fat berth when he left India. His predecessor went there a pauper peer and returned to England with $1,250,000. The little Duke of Argyle will succeed Elgin. He is a poor devil with but half a million of income, and it is an act of charity to give him something.

The Louisville Journal says: We want the true emancipation policy proclaimed. We want Burnside and Foster and Rosecrans and Grant and McClernand, with their powerful armies, to cut the very heart of this rebellion and emancipate the hundreds of thousands of loyal men who are held in political servitude by the most galling despotism the world ever knew.

The Democratic organization, my boy, says Orpheus C. Kerr, in its zeal to benefit its distracted country, is occasionally like that eminent fire company in the Sixth Ward, which nobly usurped with its hose the terrible business of putting out a large conflagration, and never remembered, until its beautiful machine was all in position, that another company of fellow firemen had exclusive possession of all the water works.

NEW STYLE OF ROBBERY.—We have repeatedly called public attention to the "suppression dodge," which is practiced by certain of the secesh school of newspapers. It appears that the public need continual warning on this point. The machinery of the artifice is a great deal the same as in the bogus robbery dodge, but in this case, it amounts to actual robbery. For instance: start a newspaper, with the understanding that it is to be a Union Democratic paper, or a neutral; run it awhile; get all the advance subscriptions that you can; pocket them and get your paper suppressed. After this, abuse the tyrant Lincoln and his foul minions, ask your subscribers to take the circumstances into consideration, and say no more about it. Go on and play this over three or four times, and you will make some money. In this way, we have had the Herald, Register, and Review, published at Eugene City; the Democrat, Inquirer, and now the State Democrat, at Albany; the Gazette, and now the Intelligencer, at Jacksonville, besides some other instances of this kind which will receive notice in another shape hereafter. All these have taken just such a course as would be sure to prevent the proprietors from furnishing their papers to their subscribers. Malone, of the Union, is alone in continuing to subscribers as agreed upon. We denounce the practice as no better than stealing, in the matter of getting money dishonestly, and infinitely worse than stealing in the particular of manliness and openness. It is calculated to dishonor the printer's craft and the respectable profession of a journalist. There has been enough money taken from the pockets of the people to support this beggarly style of newspapers, which are too poor to buy news, too lazy to gather locals, and almost too much so to steal telegrams with the scissors.

THE CANOE AND SADDLE.—Theodore Winthrop has just published a book with the title which forms the caption of this article. It is principally devoted to descriptions of scenes and adventures in Oregon and Washington Territory. The Chinook Jargon, once the polite language of Oregon, is thus described by him:

A grotesque jargon called Chinook, is the lingua-franca of the whites and Indians of the Northwest. Once the Chinooks were the most numerous tribe along the Columbia, and the first, from their position at its mouth, to meet and talk with strangers. Now it is all over with them; their bones are dust; small pox and spirits have eliminated the race. But there grew up between them and the traders a lingo, an incoherent coagulation of words—as much like a settled, logical language as a legion of centrifugal, marauding Bashi Bazouks, every man a Jack-of-all-trades, a beggar and blackguard, is like an accurate, unanimous, disciplined battalion. It is a jargon of English, French, Spanish, Chinook, Kallapooga, Haida and other tongues, civilized and savage. It is an attempt on a small scale to nullify Babel by combining a confusion of tongues into a confounding of tongues—a witches' caldron in which the vocable that bobs up may be some old familiar Saxon verb, having suffered Procrustean docking or elongation, and now doing substantive duty; or some strange monster, evidently nurtured within the range of tomahawks and calumets.

The effect of the sublime scenery of our mountain ranges, Mr. Winthrop thinks will be to produce a grand development of our race. He puts his idea in this shape:

Our race has never yet come into contact with great mountains as companions of daily life, nor felt that daily development of the finer and more comprehensive senses which these signal facts of nature compel. That is an influence of the future. The Oregon people, in a climate where being is bliss—where every breath is a draught of vivid life—these Oregon people, carrying to a new and grander New England of the West a fuller growth of the American Idea, under whose teaching the man of lowest ambitions must still have some little indestructible respect for himself, and the brute of most tyrannical aspirations some little respect for others; carrying there a religion two centuries farther on than the crude and cruel Hebraism of the Puritans; carrying the civilization of history where it will not suffer by the example of Europe—with such material that Western society, when it crystalizes, will elaborate new systems of thought and life. It is unphilosophical to suppose that a strong race, developing under the best, largest and calmest considerations of nature, will not achieve a destiny.

By Overland Telegraph.

[SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE "OREGONIAN."]

LATER FROM THE EAST.

Dates to January 11th.

CAIRO, Jan. 11th.—A Memphis dispatch of this morning, says that McClernand has marched to Vicksburg and superseded Sherman. There has been no fighting at Vicksburg for several days.

A dispatch from Newbern, (N. C.) 6th, reports 1,000 rebels in Goldsboro' and Kingston.

The Richmond Examiner, of the 5th, says it is reported that a great expedition of gunboats and transports, under General Nagle, left Fortress Monroe on the 1st, for some Southern port. From indications deemed unmistakable, the enemy is prepared to make a grand demonstration on Goldsboro' and Kingston.

New York, January 11th.—The steamer Creole from New Orleans, Jan. 3d, has arrived. The purser of the Creole reports that the gunboat Clifton arrived from the South-west Pass on the evening of the 3d with news that the rebels had made an assault on the Federals at Galveston, (Texas,) on the morning of the 1st. Our gunboats were attacked by five rebel steamers. Our gunboats were protected by double rows of cotton bales. The Harriet Lane was captured; the officers, including the Captain, and crew—130 in all—were killed by musketry from rebel steamers. The gunboats Clifton and Owasco were engaged, but escaped; the former losing no men and having but one wounded. Two barges, loaded with coal, fell into the enemy's hands. The Westfield, flagship of Commodore Renshaw, was not engaged, she being in a northern channel. Her crew were transferred to a transport, and Renshaw, fearing she would fall into the hands of the enemy, blew her up. By some mismanagement or accident the explosion occurred before the boat containing Renshaw and his boat's crew got away, and they were blown up with the ship. The remainder of the crew were saved. Our land forces, under Colonel Burrill, probably did not exceed three hundred. The troops which had been sent there to occupy Galveston did not arrive, and the place was evacuated. They did not disembark. All the fleet is now on the way back to New Orleans. The rebels are estimated at about 5,000. Our loss is estimated at 150 to 160 killed, and 200 taken prisoners. Rebels suffered considerably, as our guns fired grape and canister into their midst.

Cairo, Jan. 11th.—By arrival of steamer Memphis to-night from the Yazoo river, we have authentic reports to the 1st. Sherman's repulse was complete. The entire force under command of McClernand had embarked on transports, closely pursued by rebels' advance, which coming within range of the gunboats were driven back with severe loss. At last accounts the entire fleet, with transports, had arrived at Island No. 82, on their way to Napoleon. As nearly as could be ascertained, our loss is 400 killed, 1,500 wounded, and 1,000 missing.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 9.—It is stated that a rebel force under Gen. Marmaduke, in the rear of Blunt and Heron, attacked Springfield, Missouri, on the 8th. There has been some fighting since. At noon the enemy in large force took our guns, but were repulsed at dark. Militia reinforcements are coming in.

FRANKFORT, Jan. 9th.—The Kentucky Legislature met yesterday. The Governor recommends that Kentucky reject Lincoln's proclamation.

DETROIT, Michigan, Jan. 9th.—The Michigan Legislature met yesterday and re-elected Chandler United States Senator for six years.

Latest from Vicksburg.

Gen. McClernand has assumed command of the Union forces at Vicksburg. Rebel advices, the latest, are to the 2d of January from that point. The Union forces have gone down the Yazoo, and the rebels think that they will try to storm their works at Snyder's Bluffs. The news from that quarter indicates a likelihood of active operations.

The Daily Oregonian.

CITY.

The MORNING OREGONIAN has a larger SUBSCRIPTION LIST than any other Daily published in this City.

Legal Tender Notes this Day—83 and 84c.

Discouraging Enlistments.—Two notices, calling for volunteers were posted at the Post Office Building yesterday One of them recounted the experience of the writer in the Cayuse, or some other, war, and advised all persons to beware lest they failed to be paid for their services if they enlisted under the Governor's call for troops We would suggest to our eccentric friend, who posted this notice, that he comes under the class of offenders who discourage enlistments, and had better be wary lest he puts his foot in it.

Auction Sale.—A B Richardson held a large and spirited sale of furniture at his Auction House, corner of Oak and Front streets, yesterday morning The bidding was brisk, and fair prices were obtained.

Favors.—Messrs Wells, Fargo & Co have our thanks for files of upper Columbia papers, and for prompt delivery of correspondence. Mr. John H. Scranton, of the Lewiston Age, has laid us under obligations for favors from that office. Also to E. E. Kelly, of Walla.

Insane Man.—An insane man was brought down from Dalles on the Hunt, yesterday afternoon, to be placed in the Asylum at this place. He is a Californian, and was on his way to the mines when his insanity developed itself.

For Harrisburg.—The steamer Rival, leaving Couch's wharf at eight o'clock on tomorrow (Wednesday) morning, will connect with the steamer Relief for Harrisburg.

The Iron Age.—After all the talk about kings, it is King Iron that rules the roast in these days of war. Cotton may do for breast works, but it won't stop bayonets As for gold and silver, they are nowhere. They are very timid potentates and retire into obscurity in times of danger. But iron puts on a bold front; it does the work of war as well as of civilization. What with our iron projectiles and our iron-clads this may be said to be the true Iron Age Your Monitors are the only stickers now, and revolving batteries show how the world goes round A plated ship is more powerful than gold or silver plate, and black mail is now the only protection. The biggest bores are now the most sought after, and nothing goes further than cast iron when cast from a piece of the best modern stamp, placed upon a "coign of vantage." The times, too, demand men of iron, tough and stiff in the back. The iron in our blood now must predominate. Old Ironsides should be alive again in these days for the battle he fought is being refought on a broader arena. One needs an iron constitution to live in these hard times. These remarks are not without weight though lightly made, though devoted to iron they are not intended to be ironical.—Portland Transcript.

Lieut. Lowe's Buttons.—The S F. Herald, of the 1st, has the following:

It has leaked out that much excitement exists among lady sympathizers in this city in [illegible] of the fact being made known that some of the lady passengers by the Ariel secured Lieut. Lowe's coat and vest buttons. The fair rebels are all nearly beside themselves on the subject. Each one is determined to have a button.

Storage.—The Fire-Proof Stone Warehouse, opposite the Umatilla House, is the only building, "not made of wood," in the Dalles, where goods are taken on STORAGE All other houses that take goods on storage are wooden buildings and in exposed parts of the town, liable to the risk of fire. The subscriber assures his patrons that his charges are but $1 50 per ton per month storage and although [illegible] in wooden buildings is $1 00 per ton, yet the public cannot fail to perceive the advantages the subscriber possesses over other warehouses of this place.

Dalles, Jan 20, 1863.1m BASEY BIVEN

Expectorant Without Opium!—Dr. W[illegible]'s BALSAM claims the favorable attention of those whose constitutions forbid the use of Opium or Morphine. This astonishing remedy for CONSUMPTION and Lung Diseases, has received the strongest testimonials from citizens of the highest respectability, and is richly worth a fair trial.

REDINGTON & CO.,
General Agents for the Pacific Coast,
416 and 418 Front street, San Francisco

For Coughs.—The sudden changes of our climate are sources of Pulmonary, Bronchial and Asthmatic Affections. Experience having proved that simple remedies often act speedily and certainly when taken in the early stages of the disease, recourse should at once be had to "Brown's Bronchial Troches," or Lozenges, let the Cold, Cough, or Irritation of the Throat be ever so slight, as by this precaution a more serious attack may be effectually warded off. Public Speakers and Singers will find them effectual for clearing and strengthening the voice. See advertisement. dec16daw3m

White's Fever and Ague Drops—For the cure of AGUE, PANAMA FEVER, NEURALGIA and GENERAL DEBILITY.

This medicine has been used in private practice for many years with great success. Indeed, in no instance has it failed to effect a speedy cure, in Ague especially, one bottle having been found sufficient in most cases and in none are more than two bottles required

A great number of testimonials could be given to verify these statements, but the proprietor prefers relying upon the merits of the medicine alone A cure is guaranteed in nine cases out of ten.

Particulars of the Battle at Murfreesboro

The following brilliant account of the rebel attack and repulse on our right at Murfreesboro on the 31st of D[illegible] was telegraphed from Chi[illegible] on the 8th inst

General McCook's command, which was the right wing, consisted of Johnson's, Davis' and Sheridan's Divisions, posted from right to left in the order named. Early in the morning the enemy threw themselves upon Sheridan with terrible energy, but were three times repulsed. The fourth time they advanced in larger numbers and with [illegible] position than before. Sheridan's men were compelled to give ground. It was only for a moment. The gallant Gen. Sill, assisted by the daring officers, rallied the troops. The stars and stripes were once more advanced and the rebels were driven from this quarter of the field. It was a few minutes after eight A. M. when this occurred. But a short time elapsed when attention was directed to the extreme right, where three divisions of the enemy, under Hardee, advanced in massive columns and charged impetuously upon Johnson and Davis. A portion of Johnson's infantry immediately broke and ran before they had time to take their arms from the stack. Edgerton's battery was taken before it fired three rounds. Simonson's battery fought well and brought off all but two of the guns. Goodspeed's battery fired several rounds and then lost four pieces. Gen. Kirk, commanding one brigade of this division, was severely wounded while endeavoring to rally his regiments. The enemy had by this time succeeded in getting the right flank completely hemmed in. A large number of the officers of every grade were shot down while standing at the muzzles of rebel muskets. Brigades and regiments rushed up in an utter indisgraceful disorder, and the rout of the division became irretrievably total. No other conclusion can be arrived at but that the right was completely surprised, and that, too, under circumstances which should have rendered it particularly vigilant. It was left for Sheridan to stay the hitherto successful onset of the foe. Never did man labor more faithfully than he to perform the task. Never was a leader seconded by more gallant soldiers. His division formed a kind of pivot upon which the broken right wing turned in its flight. Its perilous condition may easily be imagined when the flight of Davis' division left it without protection from the triumphant enemy, who now swarmed upon its front and right flank. But it fought until one fourth its numbers lay bleeding. Then it gave way, and the retreat soon changed to a rout, only less complete than that of the troops of Johnson and Davis. All these divisions were now hurled back together into the immense ravines and cedar thickets which skirt the turnpike and extend far over to the right. Brigade after brigade, and battery after battery, from Palmer's, Negley's and Rosecrans' divisions were sent into the thickets to check the progress of the foe and rally the fugitives, but all in turn were either crushed outright by flying crowds, or broken by the impetuosity of the foe and put to confused flight, or compelled to retire and extricate themselves in the best manner that seemed to offer. The history of the combat in those dark cedar thickets will never be known. No man could see his own regiment, no one will ever be able to tell who fought bravest or who proved recreant to their trust. In spite of their heroism and devotion—in spite of the desperate struggles which marked every fresh advance of the foe—in spite of the awful sacrifice of life on the part of the officers and soldiers of the Union army, the rebels still steadily pushed onward, and came nearer and nearer to the turnpike. Nearly two miles and a half had the right wing of our army been driven in, and faintness of heart came over me as the destruction of the whole army seemed to stare us in the face. But the word went forth from Rosekrans, and the flower of the left wing and center hurried over towards the right, massed rank behind rank in an array of imposing grandeur, along the turnpike and facing to the woods through which the rebels were advancing.

The scene at this time was as grand and awful as anything I ever expect to witness until the day of judgment. I stood upon the highest point of a somewhat elevated space, being between the turnpike and the railroad, fronting the key to our position. Let the rebels once obtain possession of it, and of the immense train of wagons packed along the turnpike, and the Union army would be irretrievably ruined. Even its line of retreat would be cut off, and nothing could save it from utter rout, slaughter and capture, and yet each minute it became more and more plainly evident that all the reinforcement which had been hurried into the woods to sustain and rally the broken right wing and check the progress of the enemy in that direction had proved inadequate to the task and had in turn been overthrown by the great mass, which was struggling in inextricable disorder through the woods. Such sounds as proceeded from that gloomy forest were enough to appall with terror the stoutest hearts. The roar of cannon, the crashing of shot through the trees, the whizzing and bursting of shells, and the uninterrupted rattle of thirty thousand muskets—all mingled in one prolonged and tremendous volume of sound, as though the thunders of heaven had been rolled together. Above all could be heard the wild cheers of the rebel hosts, as body after body of our troops gave way and were pushed back towards the turnpike. Nearer and nearer came the storm, louder and louder resounded the tumult of the battle. The immense train of wagons packed along the roads suddenly seemed instinct with struggling life. Every species of army vehicle, preceded by frightened mules and horses, rattled away pell mell in an opposite direction from that in which the victorious foe was pressing onward. The shouts and cries of the terrified teamsters, urging the horses at the top of their speed, now mingled with the billows of sounds which swayed and surged over the field. Everything now depended upon the regiments and batteries which the genius of Rosecrans had massed along the turnpike to receive the enemy when he should emerge from the woods in pursuit of our broken and flying battalions. Suddenly the rout became visible, and a crowd of ten thousand fugitives, presenting every possible phase of wild and uncontrollable disorder, burst from the cedar thickets and rushed into the open space between them and the turnpike. Among them all, perhaps not a half dozen of the same regiment could have been found together. Thick and fast the bullets of the enemy fell among them. Scores of them were shot down, but still their number constantly increased by reason of the fresh crowds which burst every moment from the thickets. It was with the greatest difficulty that some regiments, which had been massed together as a sort of forlorn hope to withstand it if possible, and drive back the victorious cohorts of treason, could prevent their ranks from being crushed and broken by the mass of fugitives.

With calm courage Gen. Crittenden awaited the coming storm. As he cast his eye over the grand array which he had mustered to repel the foe, he already felt himself master of the situation. At last the long lines of the enemy emerged from the wood, rank behind rank, with a demoniac yell, intended to strike terror to the souls of the Yankees who stood before them. They charged with fearful energy, almost to the very muzzles of the cannon whose dark mouths [illegible] A dazzling sheet of flame burst from the ranks of the Union troops. An awful roar shook the earth. A crash rent the atmosphere and the foremost line of the rebel host was literally swept from the field, and seemed to melt away like snow flakes before the flame. Then both armies were enveloped in a vast cloud of smoke, which hid everything from the eye. On the still visible ground between the pike and the railroad there was a tumult of trouble. Not knowing what would be the result of the strife raging under the canopy of smoke that concealed the combatants, the flight of those in charge of the wagons of ammunition became more rapid and disordered. Thousands of fugitives from the broken right wing mingled with the teams. Frequently a mass of men, horses and wagons would be crushed to the ground by the [illegible] conceivable form of dreadful missile which whirled and bursted among the crowd. Terror and dismay reigned in indescribable [illegible] disordered mass rushed down as fast as possible toward the river, into which they plunged, pushing and struggling to [illegible] the other side.

The combat under that great cloud of smoke was somewhat similar to that of Waterloo— We know not exactly what occurred—there was a shout, a charge, a crash, a fire, a [illegible] and then forces disappeared. In ten minutes the thunder of battle burst forth from the cloud. When our battalions advanced they found no rebels between the woods and the turnpike except the dead, dying and disabled. There were hundreds of these, and their blood reddened the ground. Since the annihilation of the Old Guard at Waterloo there probably has not been an instance of so great a slaughter in so short a time as during these repulses of the rebels in the left at Murfreesboro.

The rebel left was now thoroughly repulsed. Our troops, emboldened by success, pushed after them into the woods, driving them back in turn over a considerable portion of the ground which we at first occupied.— The roar of our artillery sounded further and further off, as the different batteries moved on slowly after the retreating foe. It was nearly four o'clock when Hardee was repulsed and all immediate danger in that quarter was over. He had succeeded in defeating the right, but did not gain the rear. While the battle was raging on the right, a half dozen pieces of artillery, belonging to Palmer's division, kept up a continual fire on the rebel lines at Murfreesboro, in order to protect any advance from that quarter. The division of the rebel General Withers happened to be just in range of these cannon. Here he had been stationed by Hardee in readiness to charge upon Palmer's division at the proper time. The position was most uncomfortable. At every discharge of the artillery some of Withers' men bit the dust. Goaded almost to madness by this slaughter of his helpless men the rebel leader ordered a charge. His men advanced with great impetuosity, but their recklessness was of no avail against the few proud regiments that stood in their way. The desperate assailants withdrew at last. Their loss must have been fearful, as they call it the bloodiest struggle of the day.

There was now a lull in the storm. Scarcely a volley of musketry or a boom of cannon was heard for three or four hours. Some hoped the bloody scenes had ended for the day. But rebel leaders, disappointed by failure to penetrate our camp by way of the right wing, were preparing for a bold blow at the center. All the reserves were attached to the center of their array under Polk. Bragg in person placed himself at the head of the columns. The nature of the ground in this part of the field was such that every movement of either army could be distinctly seen. The field towards Murfreesboro was smooth enough for a holiday parade ground. A fierce cannonade up the turnpike announced the coming onset. The rebel line came on in magnificent order and stretched away diagonally across the great sloping field.

At a sufficient interval another line deployed into the open ground parallel with the first. Ere the forward battalions were engaged a third line of battle came forth. It seemed as though our feeble troops in that direction must be crushed by the weight of these immense masses. But Rosecrans had detected the rebel design even before their front line had appeared in view. The least exhausted troops of the left and center were hurried forward at the double quick to confront this new effort of the enemy, and even from the extreme left a brigade was brought over to take part in the defense. The rebels rushed up to the very muzzles of our cannon and hurled their muskets at the heads of our artillery. Men even shouted demoniacally when their hearts were pierced by bullets and tumbled to earth while endeavoring to take another step in advance. The same formidable array of batteries and battalions again confronted the foe as that upon which the violence of Hardee's force had spent itself. Similar results followed. An almost simultaneous sheet of fire leaped forth from each opposing line. For a few minutes both stood like walls of stone, discharging their muskets into each other's bosoms. Then the rebels returned the charge, but the storm of lead and iron hail burnt into their faces and all around them, sweeping them down. If the soldiers of the Union wavered before this fierce onset, it was only for a moment, and in forty minutes from the time the first rebel line marched forth, their lines were dashed to pieces and the survivors of the conflict were flying in wild confusion over the fields and disappearing in the dense woods. The battle was over until early next morning. The rebels continued to fire cannon from the direction of Murfreesboro as though in angry protest against their repulse. When this ceased there was silence all over the field.

Proclamation by the Governor

Executive Office, Portland, Oregon, January [illegible] 1863.

By the President of the United States, through Brigadier General George Wright, commanding the Department of the Pacific, and Brigadier General Benjamin Alvord, commanding the District of Oregon, I have been authorized to raise six additional companies to complete the 1st Regiment of Cavalry, Oregon Volunteers. They will be needed for the coming Spring on the frontiers of this State and Washington Territory, and for an expedition against the Snake Indians, who have long been engaged in plundering emigrants and murdering our fellow citizens. I cannot doubt that the citizens of Oregon, who have always promptly responded to any demand for their military services, will [illegible] respond to this call, [illegible] showing their loyalty to the Government [illegible] frontiers.

The enlisted men, when mustered, will be supplied with horses by the United States, [illegible] shall be deemed advisable by the Government.

[illegible] a whole company, which will furnish their own horses and [illegible] equipments [illegible]

The company will consist of one hundred [illegible] and when mustered into the service of the United States to serve for three years, unless sooner discharged.

Recruiting offices will be immediately opened at Portland, Dalles City, and perhaps at other places. By the Governor,
